Advocacy Update

Arts Advocacy Day

On March 16, 1999, CAA joined fifty-eight other organizations in co-sponsoring Americans for the Arts' twelfth annual Arts Advocacy Day. More than 280 people registered to take part in this two-day advocacy conference to promote increased federal support for the arts and humanities.

President Clinton has proposed an unprecedented increase in his fiscal year 2000 budget for federal cultural programs, asking for $150 million for both the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) and National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), and $34 million for the Office of Museum Services (OMS). We hope the strong bipartisan Congressional support for the NEA and NEH that was seen in the 105th Congress will be evident again this year. For the first time in many years, Congressional offices that were opposed to federal funding for the arts and humanities opened their doors to speak with advocates.

Both the NEA and NEH have created new initiatives addressing how increased funding would be allocated. One of these, the NEA's "Challenge America," will address lawmakers' concerns that the endowment's support has been unevenly distributed around the nation and that its financing for individual artists, whose work many conservatives found offensive, came at the expense of improving access to the arts for all Americans. The new funds would meet three criteria: 1) to protect and share America's living cultural heritage; 2) to enhance American creativity; and 3) to strengthen American families, communities, and our nation through the arts.

Humanities on the Hill

CAA joined state humanities councils and other humanities organizations on May 6, 1999, to support the NEH. Senator Thad Cochran from Mississippi and Senator Edward M. Kennedy from Massachusetts welcomed attendees to Humanities on the Hill. The program featured many other Senators and Representatives who showed bipartisan support for the humanities and discussed the possibility of increased funding for the endowment.

NEH Chairman William Ferris has kindly contributed the following article to CAA News, in which he addresses the NEH's plan for increased funding.

Charting a New Course: The National Endowment for the Humanities at Year 2000

Our nation now stands at the end of a remarkable century and on the threshold of a new millennium. The year 2000 will also mark the thirty-fifth anniversary of the National Endowment for the Humanities. At this moment for both the nation and the agency, the NEH plans to chart a new course for federal support for the humanities in the United States in the twenty-first century. The initiatives that we propose for the year 2000 will significantly expand the impact of humanities in the nation.

After several years of flat funding at the $110 million level, the endowment and the administration have requested that Congress increase our funding to $150 million in fiscal year 2000. This appropriation request would be used to offset the 36 percent funding cut NEH sustained in fiscal year 1996—a reduction significantly larger than those borne by

Annual Conference Update

Call for Regional Chairs: Baltimore 2002

The Annual Conference Committee is seeking nominations and self-nominations from studio artists, art historians, and museum professionals to serve as regional chairs for the 90th Annual Conference, to be held in Baltimore in 2002. Submissions are sought for both Contemporary Issues/Studio Art and Historical Studies from individuals active in the Baltimore/Mid-Atlantic region, who will work with the committee to develop the conference program. In each category, there is one opening that may be shared in a co-chair arrangement.

Regional chairs have an opportunity to assume an important role in shaping CAA's central membership event and drawing attention to the most distinguished artistic and scholarly work produced in their home region.

Responsibilities of the regional chairs include: 1) planning the 2002 conference as full, voting members of the Annual Conference Committee; 2) soliciting session proposals and other forms of participation; 3) providing advice and assistance to session chairs and participants; 4) encouraging colleagues in the Baltimore region to participate in the conference; and 5) identifying institutions and organizations from the region to approach for off-site sessions, receptions, and special events.

These tasks are generally structured around a set timetable of meetings. Regional chairs are required to attend: 1) a meeting of the Annual Conference Committee held at the annual conference in Chicago in 2001; 2) a two-session planning meeting held over one weekend in October 2000; 3) a one-day meeting held in July 2001 to schedule the sessions; and 4) each day of the conference in February 2002 to be present at meetings and oversee the program.

Chairs will work in a voluntary capacity, without monetary compensation, as a service to CAA and its members. It is expected that chairs affiliated with institutions will request assistance from their home institutions for clerical help, travel, and other administrative costs. To enable chairs without such support to serve, CAA has earmarked a small fund to help offset these expenses.

You must be a CAA member in good standing to be considered. To apply, submit a two-page letter of interest and a two-page résumé. Send application materials to Conference Director, Regional Chair Search, CAA, 275 7th Ave., New York, NY 10001. For membership information, contact Membership Services, 212/691-1051, ext. 12; memsvcs@collegeart.org. Deadline: September 30, 1999.

Artists' Portfolio Review Call for Curators and Critics: New York 2000

The Annual Conference Committee is seeking curators and critics to participate in the fourth annual Artists' Portfolio Review during the 89th Annual Conference in New York, February 23-26, 2000.

The Artists' Portfolio Review provides an opportunity for artists who come from a wide range of backgrounds to have slides or videos of their work critiqued by professionals in the field. The program pairs a member artist with a critic or curator for a twenty-minute appointment. The individual sessions are scheduled to run during afternoons (noon to 5:00 p.m.) over three days, from Wednesday, February 23, to Friday, February 25. Whenever possible, artists will be matched with reviewers based on medium or discipline.

Curators and critics who volunteer provide an important service to early-career artists, enabling them to receive professional criticism of their work. Given the competitiveness of today's art world, the value to artists of this contribution cannot be overestimated.

Interested individuals must be members in good standing, must attend the conference, and must be willing to contribute one two-hour period for five successive 20-minute critiques. If you are a critic or curator interested in participating in this valuable program, send a brief letter of interest and résumé to Conference Director, Artists' Portfolio

Review, CAA, 275 7th Ave., New York, NY 10001. Deadline September 1, 1999.

Career Development Workshops Call for Mentors: New York 2000

The Annual Conference to be held February 23-26, 2000, in New York, will mark the fourth anniversary of the Career Development Workshops. To date, approximately 900 members who are beginning their careers have met with professionals in their respective fields to help them obtain valuable professional advice and guidance.

To ensure the continual success of the program, we are seeking mentors from all areas of art history, studio art, and the museum profession. Those serving as mentors are providing a significant professional service to members. In the past three years, several mentors have described this experience as one of the most rewarding of their professional careers.

Mentors are required to spend twenty minutes with each candidate, reviewing cover letters, c.v.'s, slides, and other pertinent material. Given the anxiety associated with conference placement, mentors must be sensitive to the needs of the candidates and be able to provide constructive criticism when necessary.

All applicants must be members in good standing, must attend the conference, and must be prepared to commit three consecutive hours on one of the two days of the workshops: Thursday, February 24, and Friday, February 25.

Art historians and studio artists must be tenured; curators must have five years of experience and current employment with a museum or university gallery.

The workshops are not intended to be used as a screening process by institutions seeking new faculty. Applications will not be accepted from individuals whose departments are conducting a faculty search in the field in which they are mentoring. Mentors should not attend as candidates for positions in the same field in which workshop candidates may be applying.

Send a current c.v. and letter of interest to: Michael Aurbach, Dept. of Fine Arts, Vanderbilt University, Box 1801-B, Nashville, TN 37235; 615/322-2831. Deadline: September 1, 1999.

Call for Papers—Affiliate Society

Association for Latin American Art
Open Session: Latin American Art

Patricia Sarro, Dept. of Art, Youngstown State University, Youngstown, OH 44555-3627; fax 330/742-7183; cdtp57b@prodigy.com.

Proposals are invited for papers addressing any topic concerning Latin American art (Pre-Columbian through contemporary). This ninety-minute session will consist of three papers (fifteen minutes each), with commensurate time for discussion following each paper. Graduate students are particularly encouraged to submit a proposal. Papers should be sent to Patricia Sarro by September 1, 1999; notification will be made by October 1. Paper drafts will be due by December 1.

POSITION AVAILABLE: USHER/PROJECTIONIST COORDINATOR College Art Association Annual Conference New York, February 23–26, 2000

College Art Association seeks an individual to coordinate the recruitment, training, scheduling, payroll, and onsite supervision of all slide projectionists and ushers hired for CAA's annual conference to be held at the New York Hilton and Towers. There are two phases of this job. First, planning and recruitment of ushers and projectionists start in October prior to the conference; this phase represents a light, flexible time commitment. Second, onsite training sessions for projectionists and ushers begin on Wednesday, February 23, and program sessions run from Thursday, February 24 to Saturday, February 26. The coordinator will work onsite during all conference hours. At the conclusion of the conference, the coordinator will file a report on session attendance and process all forms for staff payment. The applicant should have substantial experience in visual resources management and equipment and have connections to college and university art departments with audiovisual services and slide collections in the New York City region. A proven ability to work effectively and methodically in a supervisory capacity is essential. The applicant must be organized, resourceful, and be able to function well under pressure with a strong customer service orientation. The coordinator will receive a stipend and, if not a resident, will be provided with a hotel room for the period of February 23–26. Send a résumé and letter of interest to Conference Director, Usher/Projectionist Coordinator Search, CAA, 275 7th Ave., New York, NY, 10001. No calls please. College Art Association is an equal opportunity employer.

MFA Exhibition, New York 2000

Hunter College Fine Arts Building of City University of New York, located at 450 West 41st Street in Manhattan, will be the site of the M.F.A. Exhibition for the Annual Conference. The exhibition will run from February 1 through March 11, 2000. There will be an opening reception on Thursday February 24, from 5:30 to 7:00 p.m. Twenty M.F.A. programs from the greater New York area will be represented.

Special Events and Exhibits, New York 2000

Several institutions in the New York area will be offering complimentary admission to CAA members participating in the 2000 annual conference, among them the Cooper-Hewitt National Design Museum, which will be holding the National Design Triennial Exhibit. The Society of Illustrators will be holding its 42nd Annual of American Illustration. The Women's Caucus for Art will sponsor Elements 2000 and Images of Home. Polish Art (Holocaust and Contemporary Art), sponsored by Art Without Walls, will be mounted at the Consulate General of Poland in New York. The Bronx Museum of the Arts will feature Amnesia, which will include the work of sixteen artists from South America.

Museum Task Force Committee Update

Report on the Museum Professionals Roundtables

This was the second year of the Museum Task Force-initiated roundtable discussion groups. Once again the attendance was high and the participants agreed that this is a welcome format for museum professionals during the CAA annual meetings. Several people were surprised to learn that so many museum colleagues attended the CAA conference. We hope to offer such a session again in New York. In order to include those CAA members who could not attend but expressed interest, a brief summary of these discussions follows.

The best roundtable, led by Wendy Owens and Lori Gross, was on the topic "New Technology in the Exhibition: How Does It Serve the Museum?" Much was said about how technology was being used for collection management purposes and whether these systems were driven by registrarial concerns rather than cataloguing concerns. Several comments followed about the internal versus external users of these collection systems—that it was difficult to predict the users at the time the system was being designed. Then the group turned to the use of technology within exhibitions. Several examples of successful projects were discussed, including the role of conservation projects in displaying how technology can elucidate a painting. The problem of a "dated" look to any of these systems is a difficult one.

A second table led by Christine Kondoleon and Suzannah Fabing was centered on "Mediating vs. Litigating: Cultural Property Issues" in order to review the recommendations of the Rutgers University October 1998 conference titled "Art, Antiquity, and the Law: Preserving our Global Cultural Heritage." Those interested in learning about the resolutions may consult them on the Internet (<http://www.rci.rutgers.edu/~allconf/>).

A representative from the Archaeological Institute of America's Museum and Exhibitions Committee, Jennifer Neils, noted that the AIA has drafted a document for museum directors and other museum professionals that outlines the options for a responsible acquisitions policy. The AIA should be posting these guidelines on their website shortly (<http://www.archaeological.org>).

The "Resolution Concerning the Acquisition of Cultural Properties Originating in Foreign Countries" (1973) (<http://www.collegeart.org/caa/aboutcaa/for.cult.props.html>) is the most recent statement published by CAA addressing acquisition concerns. The group felt it would be useful to have a session at the next CAA conference about these issues in an effort to provide a forum for open discussion on such issues as the need for new acquisition policy guidelines.

The third table, led by John Neff and Annie Storr, focused on the topic "Conflicts in Programming: Crowd Pleasers, Vanity Exhibits, and Exhibits That Serve the Field." The participants wanted to focus on "blockbusters" and alternatives from the perspectives of: marketing (one can also market the permanent collection); types of museum (university museums have fewer pressures to mount blockbusters); and bridging the perceived gap between academy and museum, and the museum and CAA.

Recommendations made by the entire group as to how CAA could improve its relationship with museum members included addressing the CAA Membership Form in terms of professional identification. In addition, museums need to heighten exposure of exhibition catalogues, for example, by submitting them for the Alfred H. Barr, Jr., Award, and for review in CAA Reviews, CAA's new online journal (<http://www.caareviews.org>).

Several individuals requested more sessions and panels with museum professionals and centered on exhibitions or installations in the host city of the conference. The last part of the session was set aside for the identification of issues that the museum professionals of the CAA membership see as pressing and a consideration of their charges to the Museum Task Force Committee.

Future topics for roundtable discussions are welcome. Address them to Katie Hollander, Director of Development and Special Projects, kholland@collegeart.org, or Christine Kondoleon, ckondoleon@mediaone.net. Information on the Alfred H. Barr, Jr., Award for distinguished catalogues in the history of art can be obtained on the CAA website: http://www.collegeart.org/caa/news/1999/3/nominees3\_99.html. Museums and galleries may submit books, catalogues, CD-ROMs, and publicity materials related to exhibitions to CAA Reviews, c/o Managing Editor Jessica Tagliaferro at the New York office.

Getty Information Institute Closes

Over the past decade the Getty Information Institute (GII), which ceased to exist on June 30, 1999, produced some of the principal vocabulary tools and guidelines needed to help institutions document art and was a leader in addressing some of the key issues in helping to bridge art information and technology. The GII worked closely with CAA on several initiatives, including the creation of standard "Categories for the Description of Works of Art."

Eleanor Fink, former director of the GII, commemorates its achievements in an article published in D-Lib Magazine (see CAA website for link). The article includes descriptions of each project spearheaded by GII and links to many resources and demonstration projects.

CAA News

New Editorial Board Members

The Art Bulletin and Monographs Series Editorial Board announces three new members for the term 1999–2002: Carmen Bambach, Jeffrey Hurwit, and Steven Mansbach. The Art Journal Editorial Board has appointed Maureen Connor for the term 1999–2002; Archie Rand will serve as the board's liaison to the CAA Board of Directors.

Becoming an Affiliated Society

CAA welcomes as affiliated societies groups of artists or scholars whose goals are generally consonant with those of CAA, with a view to facilitating enhanced intercommunication and mutual enrichment. It is assumed that a substantial number of the members of such groups will already be CAA members.

To be recognized as an affiliated society, a group must be national or international in scope and must present evidence that it is primarily, or in large part, committed to the serious practice and advancement of the visual arts or to the study of some broad, major area of the history of art. It must possess a formal organizational structure, i.e., elected officers, identifiable membership, and such signs of ongoing activity as a newsletter, periodical, exhibition record, or other documentation. For information and an application: Assistant to the Executive Director, CAA, 275 7th Ave., New York, NY 10001.

Art Bulletin Book Reviewers

Linda Seidel, reviews editor for the Art Bulletin, would like to thank those who continue to inquire about reviewing books in the journal. Owing to the number of letters she has received, it has been difficult for her to find books for all who have inquired. However, she will continue to read them with interest. Send them c/o CAA, 275 7th Ave., New York, NY 10001.

Charting a New Course: The National Endowment for the Humanities at Year 2000

most other federal agencies whose budgets were cut that year. In the wake of that reduction, the endowment was forced to close down many of its core grant programs, lay off a quarter of its employees, and downsize many of the agency's functions.

Since 1996, the number of grants NEH has been able to award to humanities educators, scholars, and institutions has diminished. We now fund only one-third the number of summer seminars and institutes for teachers that we were funding before the fiscal year 1996 cuts. Endowment-supported films and museum exhibitions available to the public in the year 2000 will fall to approximately twenty-eight hours of television and thirteen museum exhibitions at twenty-five venues, down significantly from the seventy-one television-hours and thirty-six exhibitions at 200 venues that were available to citizens in the mid-1990s. And, the number of brittle books and U.S. newspapers being preserved on microfilm has been substantially reduced. The proposed budget would enable the NEH to reverse these conditions.

Our budget request uses two basic approaches to address the nation's educational and cultural well-being—to maintain and enhance NEH's core programs and to establish new initiatives that reach out to the American public. Both of these approaches are vital to the health of the humanities as our nation enters the 21st century.

The endowment's budget request places particular emphasis on the educational mission of our agency. Our goal is to advance knowledge and understanding of the humanities for all Americans. Central to this goal is a strong emphasis on teaching and learning at all levels of our nation's educational system. We will focus on professional development of humanities teachers at elementary and secondary schools and at colleges and universities. And we will continue to use MCI WorldCom's generous support to develop the nation's premier Internet resource for humanities teachers, EDSITEMent (<http://edsitement.neh.gov/>), which provides links to and lesson plans for fifty top-quality humanities websites. We will also enhance the endowment's recently launched Schools for a New Millennium, an initiative through which schools form partnerships with local libraries, museums, and universities to establish a community-wide learning environment that incorporates new technology support to teach the humanities.

The endowment supports a wide range of educational projects that include teacher seminars and institutes that improve teaching and learning of the humanities in the traditional classroom setting; public education programs of the fifty-six state humanities councils; documentary television films, museum exhibitions, library reading groups, and other general audience projects that help out-of-school citizens engage in a lifetime of learning; projects that preserve and increase access to endangered educational and intellectual materials; and serious research and scholarship that both contributes to the life of the mind and establishes the foundation for educational and public programming in the humanities.

Two other themes animate our budget request: increased emphases on technology-oriented humanities projects, and an agency-wide effort to extend the reach of the endowment's programs. Innovative humanities projects employing such new electronic information technologies as the Internet and CD-ROMs will be emphasized, as will efforts to extend the reach of our programs (and the products of our grantees) to traditionally underserved communities and areas of the country. Among the activities NEH proposes to implement at the fiscal year 2000 request level are:

- A significant increase in the number of humanities seminars and institutes for school and college teachers. A 40 percent increase in the number of seminars and institutes supported will mean that more than 500 additional teachers can revitalize their teaching of the humanities. These teachers will, in turn, reach 75,000 additional students in classrooms across the nation. We also seek support for small awards to seminar and institute participants that will allow these teachers to disseminate the results of their work to other teachers and schools.

• A special grant competition in support of projects to establish regional humanities centers. The NEH requests $4 million in special matching funds to establish regional humanities centers across the country where American traditions, cultures, and aspirations can be explored in the context of place. At each center, a wide array of research, educational, and public programming activities will use the humanities to explore the region's distinctive culture. Each center will serve as a cultural hub for its region, with a mission of broadening our citizens' awareness of how the humanities enrich the worlds in which they live. The $4 million request for regional centers is a substantial reduction from last year's budget request and indicates our intention to raise significant private support for this initiative. The endowment is actively working to raise funds needed to help establish the centers from foundations, corporations, and individual donors.

• A significant funding increase for the fifty-six state humanities councils. This funding will allow state councils to support many additional projects and to implement bold new initiatives that will engage more of their citizens with quality humanities programming.

• Expansion of opportunities for Americans to engage in lifelong learning in the humanities by supporting more high quality television and radio programs, museum exhibitions, and library reading and discussion programs. A new special initiative will also be supported—My History is America's History—that will encourage millions of Americans to learn more about their family's history and to place that history in the context of the broad sweep of American and world history.

• A special grant competition—American Legacy Editions—in support of editions of the writings of U.S. presidents and other major historical figures that will guarantee continued support for these projects and provide incentives for their expeditious completion.

• Expansion of opportunities for the nation's scholars and teachers to add to our knowledge and understanding of the humanities. In addition to enhancing support for the NEH Fellowships and Stipends Program, increased funds will allow NEH to establish a new

Travel to Collections Program that will provide small grants to humanities scholars for travel to research libraries and archives where they can consult primary resource materials vital to their research projects. A major three-year archaeology special initiative, Project SHARD, is also proposed that will revive the agency's support for archaeological research.

• A special initiative in the endowment's Preservation and Access Division that will provide grants to museums, archives, and libraries to digitize their humanities collections. This effort will bring tens of thousands of digital images of manuscripts, maps, photographs, and artifacts online, thus increasing citizen access to educational and cultural materials. Increased support for the agency's core preservation and access programs will also help to preserve on microfilm thousands of additional volumes of brittle books and pages of historic U.S. newspapers.

• Establishing new grant opportunities that will allow NEH to extend the geographic and demographic reach of its programming. These grants will reach hundreds of institutions and thousands of individuals across the country, many of whom have never had endowment support. Ensuring that all Americans have the opportunity to benefit from NEH-supported programs and activities is the agency's highest priority.

In addition to the new outreach activities mentioned above, other new grant opportunities proposed for fiscal year 2000 include:

• an initiative enabling small and mid-sized museums to receive modest grants to mount a traveling version of a successful NEH-funded exhibition;

• programs or exhibitions developed by large national organizations, with a particular emphasis on programs targeted at tribal communities and rural and inner-city audiences;

• grants to small and geographically diverse museums, historical organizations, and public libraries allowing institutions in the initial stages of developing new projects to consult and collaborate with humanities scholars;

• awards to small libraries, museums, and other cultural institutions to support staff attendance at preservation training sessions, onsite consultations by preservation experts, or the purchase of preservation supplies and equipment; and

• a series of initiatives in the NEH Challenge Grants Program that will help small and mid-sized institutions and two-year colleges improve their humanities programming and long-range institutional planning.

As the largest single source of funding for the humanities in the U.S., NEH is critical to the health and vitality of our nation's educational and cultural worlds. The importance of the endowment's mission and the success the agency has had in achieving this mission over the years is acknowledged by educators and scholars; by state, local, and national leaders (including more than three decades of support from every Congress and every President of the United States); by the heads of educational and cultural institutions; and most importantly, by the American people.

With the strong support of Congress, the Administration, and the American people, NEH has weathered the budget storms of the past few years. We are hopeful that Congress will approve our request for increased funding to allow the National Endowment for the Humanities to bring a dynamic new agenda for the humanities to every citizen in the United States.
—William R. Ferris, Chairman

As always, CAA strongly encourages you to send letters to your representatives requesting $150 million for the NEA and NEH and $34 million for OMS. For more information please see the advocacy page on our website (<http://www.collegeart.org>) or Americans for the Arts (<http://www.artsusa.org>).

Solo Exhibitions by Artist Members

Only artists who are individual CAA members will be included in this listing. Group exhibitions cannot be listed. # People in the News

In Memoriam

Robert P. Bergman, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art since 1993, died on May 6, 1999, at University Hospital in Cleveland.

Popular with the museum's public, Bergman lectured annually on art-historical monuments to standing-room-only audiences. He was interviewed and quoted by national news media on such subjects of international importance as the emerging dilemma of Nazi-looted art in museum collections.

Bergman's directorship of the Cleveland Museum of Art will be remembered for transformational milestones throughout the museum's departments, including annual attendance growth; 3 of the institution's 5 highest-attended exhibitions including Pharaohs: Treasures of Egyptian Art from the Louvre, Fabergé in America, and Vatican Treasures: Early Christian, Renaissance, and Baroque Art from the Papal Collections, which he co-curated; renovation of 30 out of 70 galleries; transformation of financial deficit to surplus; completion of a new mission statement with a visitor-centered focus and a future-based facilities planning process (now under way); and major acquisitions in all areas.

Born and raised in New Jersey, Bergman received his B.A. from Rutgers University, and his M.F.A. and Ph.D. from Princeton University. A specialist in the history of medieval art and architecture, he received numerous grants and awards, including Fulbright and Guggenheim fellowships and the Rome Prize Fellowship of the American Academy in Rome. He began his career in 1969 as visiting instructor at Lincoln University in Oxford, Pa. From 1971 to 1981, Bergman pursued a full-time academic career, most notably as assistant professor of art and archaeology at Princeton University from 1972 to 1976, and then as associate professor of fine arts at Harvard University from 1976 to 1981. He then served as director of the Walters Art Gallery in Baltimore from 1981 to 1993.

Bergman participated widely in national cultural affairs and published and lectured extensively on subjects ranging from medieval art and architecture to the role of museums in contemporary society. He served as president of the Association of Art Museum Directors and was immediate past-chairman of the Board of the American Arts Alliance. In Baltimore, he served by appointment of the Mayor and City Council as 1 of 4 committee chairs of the Baltimore City Public School Task Force on the African/African American Curriculum. Among various civic activities in Cleveland, he served as chairman of the Cleveland Cultural Coalition and on the Board of Trustees of the Greater Cleveland Growth Association.

Bergman is survived by his wife, Marcelle, daughter, Margaret, and his mother, Ethel, and brother, Ed. Donations may be made in Bergman's memory to the Cleveland Museum of Art.

Peter Birmingham, director of the University of Arizona Museum of Art in Tucson, died at age 61 on January 30, 1999.

Before taking on the position of director at the Arizona Museum of Art in 1978, he served as curator of education at the National Collection of Fine Art at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. Prior to his museum career, he was a professor of art history at the University of Cincinnati.

Helen Lundeberg, artist, died on April 19, 1999, at the age of 90.

Lundeberg was born in 1908, grew up in Pasadena, Calif., and attended the Stickney School of Art there in 1930. She is credited with the co-founding of Post-Surrealism. Lundeberg ran an art gallery on Hollywood Boulevard in Los Angeles, worked with the Federal Arts Project in the mural and print divisions from 1936 to 1942, and returned to full-time art-making in 1942.

A film project documenting Lundeberg's life, Helen Lundeberg—American Painter (Atmosphere Productions), was completed in 1987 by director John Amodeo. The film is narrated by Lundeberg and covers her entire life. In the film, Lundeberg discusses her techniques, philosophies, themes, fears, and goals while sharing her experiences of this important period in American art history.

The film was shown in her memory on May 23, 1999, at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, where there will also be a memorial exhibit in the fall of 1999.

Richard Steven Schneiderman, former director of the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, died unexpectedly on April 26, 1999, at the age of 50.

Schneiderman, whose father was an art dealer, was exposed to art at a very early age and went on to receive his Ph.D. in art history from State University of New York, Binghamton, in 1976. He then taught at the University of Georgia for a short time. For 9 years, he worked at the Georgia Museum of Art—up to the position of director. In 1986, he was recruited by the North Carolina Museum of Art.

As director of the North Carolina Museum of Art, Schneiderman significantly increased acquisitions of contemporary art and photographs. He worked hard to obtain major exhibitions for the museum and, as a result, the museum saw an increase in visitors.

Schneiderman was also responsible for the development of the Museum Park and the Park Theater, which earned the museum national exposure. He clearly loved his work and often sat at the front desk to greet visitors personally.

In 1993, Schneiderman resigned his post at the North Carolina Museum of Art and relocated to Charlottesville, where he operated a private art dealership and served as director of development for the Charlottesville-area American Red Cross. He was living in Charlottesville when his tragic death occurred. Schneiderman is survived by 4 children. He is remembered fondly by the many people who had the privilege of knowing and working with him.

Conferences & Symposia

Calls for Papers

8th Front Range Art Symposium, Denver Art Museum, November 5-6, 1999, sponsored by the Denver Art Museum's College Advisory Committee, Alliance for Contemporary Art, and Cooke-Daniels Memorial Lecture Fund. The College Advisory Committee invites proposals for 20-minute papers and presentations or panel discussions that address any aspect of public sculpture, from any time period and all parts of the world. Part of the symposium will be devoted to public sculpture in Denver. Send proposals to: Annette Stott, 8th Front Range Symposium, School of Art and Art History, University of Denver, Denver, CO 80208-2846; astott@du.edu. Deadline: August 15, 1999.

"American Architecture and Art," American Culture Association, April 19-22, 2000, New Orleans. Proposals for sessions organized around a theme, special panels, and/or individual papers will be considered. Sessions are 1 1/2 hours long. Suggested max.: 4 papers or speakers per session; number of panel participants may vary. For information or to submit a proposal, contact: Joy Sperling, Art Dept., Denison University, Granville, OH 43203; 740/587-6704; fax 740/587-5701; Sperling@Denison.edu. Deadline: September 1, 1999

"Uncommon Senses: An International Conference on the Senses in Art and Culture," April 27-29, 2000, Concordia University. This interdisciplinary conference invites papers and session proposals that explore sensory experience in the fine arts and culture, especially the often-neglected senses of taste, touch, and smell. By focusing on what lies beyond the "aesthetic gaze," "Uncommon Senses" seeks to examine the aesthetic, cultural, and political significance of nonvisual modes of sensorial engagement. Potential topics include: innovative uses of the senses in art, architecture, performance, and other media; critiques of ocularcentrism; sensory redefinitions of aesthetics; synaesthesia; non-Western aesthetics and the anthropology of the senses; technology and the future of perception; the senses inflected by gender, sexuality, class, and cultural difference; the senses in popular/postmodern culture. Send 2 copies of session proposals or 1-page abstracts along with 2 copies of c.v. to: Uncommon Senses, Lonergan College, Concordia University, 1455 de Maisonneuve W., Montreal, QC, Canada, H3G 1M8; 514/848-2280, fax 514/848-2282; senses@alcor.concordia.ca; <http://alcor.concordia.ca/~senses>. Deadline: September 15, 1999.

"Fear and Its Representations in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance," the 6th Annual ACMRS Interdisciplinary Conference, Tempe, Ariz., February 17-19, 2000. The center welcomes papers that explore any topic related to the study and teaching of the Middle Ages and Renaissance, especially those that focus on this year's theme of fear. Papers may address the role that fear of such things as torture, the exchange of hostages, public punishment, and dismemberment plays as a deterrent in secular matters; or they may investigate literal fear, such as fear of hell and damnation, fear of battle, fear of love and fear of losing love, or other relevant topics. The plenary speaker will be R. I. Moore, University of Newcastle, author of The Formation of a Persecuting Society: Power and Deviance in Western Europe, 950-1250 and The Origins of European Dissent. Send 2 copies of session proposals or 1-page abstracts, along with 2 copies of your current c.v., and the A-V request form (available on website) to: Robert E. Bjork, Arizona Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies, Arizona State University, Box 872301, Tempe, AZ 85287-2301; 602/965-5900; fax 602/965-1681; acmrs@asu.edu. Deadline: October 1, 1999.

"Visions, Dreams, and Nightmares": 20th Annual 19th-Century Studies Association Conference, March 23-25, 2000, in Arlington, Va., and Washington, D.C., in honor of the arrival of the new millennium and of the 100th anniversary of Sigmund Freud's Interpretation of Dreams. NCSA invites papers or panels from multiple disciplines that consider any manner of 19th-century permutations, materials, expressions, or interpretations of "Visions, Dreams, and Nightmares." Papers or panels may consider any one or all of the theme's terms and interpret them in any variety of ways. "Visions" encompasses millennial hopes, political aspirations, utopian plans and communities, revolutionary plots, religious prophecies, technological promises, avant-garde aesthetics, and visionary architectural constructs. "Dreams" and "Nightmares" may be those that haunt the Gothic imagination or of the Freudian mind. They may be the political dream of Fourierism or the nightmare of terroristic acts. Marx's communist revolution promised salvation from the "nightmare of materialism"; yet for many it represented "the spectre that is haunting Europe." 1-page proposals, single spaced, for 20-minute papers should be accompanied by a cover letter and a 1-2-page c.v. Proposals for a 1 1/2-hour panel should include a cover letter from the panel organizer indicating format and issues to be discussed, accompanied by a 1-page proposal and c.v. from each participant. Proposals on other topics for open sessions are also welcome. E-mail queries to: Karen V. Waters, Dept. of English, Marymount University, 2807 N. Glebe Rd., Arlington, VA 22207-4299; kwaters@phoenix.marymount.edu. E-mail proposals only to: Program Director, Phyllis Floyd, Dept. of Art, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824-1119; floyd@msu.edu. Decisions will be announced in December 1999. Deadline: October 1, 1999.

"Education in the Middle Ages," 20th Annual Medieval Studies Conference, March 24-25, 2000, Fordham University, Bronx. Send cover information and 2-page abstract to: Maryanne Kowaleski, Center for Medieval Studies, Fordham University, Bronx, NY 10458; 718/817-4655; fax 718/817-3987; medievals@murray.fordham.edu. Deadline: November 1, 1999.

"Social Reception of Baroque Gardens": Studies in Landscape Architecture, May 18-19, 2001, Dumbarton Oaks, Washington, D.C. This symposium takes as its topic relationships between changes in garden design and the uses and social reception of gardens that have been created in order to inspire social deference, win the admiration of subjects for the garden's patron in a hierarchical society, and foster a willingness to satisfy the patron's expectations. The Baroque Age in Europe provides a wealth of examples, but the social reception of such a strategic use of gardens can be studied within other historical contexts as well, including the European Renaissance; late Colonial, Revolutionary, modern or postmodern America; and many other cultures. The symposium's aim is to bring scholarship in garden history closer to contemporary developments in studies of the visual arts, literary studies, cultural history, history of ideas, history of science or philosophical studies. Proposals may derive from sources of all kinds: diaries, journals, accounts of visits of gardens, garden poems, novels, theater plays, paintings or engravings allowing the reconstruction of links between some features of garden design and judgments, beliefs, emotions, behaviors and fantasies of garden visitors or users. They may address any period of history up to the present. Send 8 copies of an abstract (max. 3 pages) describing: 1) the scope and content of the work; 2) its significance to the theme. Send abstracts to: Michel Conan, Studies in Landscape Architecture, Dumbarton Oaks, 1703 32nd St., N.W., Washington, DC 20007; 202/339-6460; fax 202/625-0432; landscape@doaks.org; <http://www.doaks.org/LandscapeArchitecture.html>. Deadline: November 1, 1999.

"The 5 Senses: An Exploration of Various Human Perceptions in Visual Culture," 2000 Art History Graduate Student Association Symposium, University of Arizona Tucson. This is a broad-based symposium intended to embrace papers culled from a variety of disciplines. The event will be held at the end of February, although an exact date has yet to be set. 1-page abstracts of scholarly papers of 20 minutes in length are requested from M.A. or Ph.D. candidates in art history or related fields. Send abstract, cover letter, résumé, or c.v. to: 2000 AHGSA Symposium, c/o Jen Robinson, 60 W. Stone Loop, #2225, Tucson, AZ 85704; robinsoj@u.arizona.edu. Deadline: December 1, 1999.

Southwest/Texas Popular Culture Association and American Culture Association Annual Meeting, February 9-12, 2000, Sheraton Old Town Hotel, Albuquerque, invites papers or panels treating any aspect of Western landscape painting. Submit 1-page abstract or panel proposal and c.v. to: Charlene G. Garfinkle, SW/Texas PCA/ACA, 1030 Kellogg Pl., Santa Barbara, CA 93111-1026; 805/566-7163; arthistgar@aol.com. Deadline: December 1, 1999.

"The Arts, Religious Education, and the Holocaust," October 23-26, 1999, Austin. Recognizing the crisis in Western culture brought about by the Holocaust, a gathering of educators, scholars, theologians, and artists will come together to speak about the general subject of conveyance and memory of such a difficult subject. The symposium will attempt to establish connections between artistic expressions of the Holocaust and other narratives that have become part of the legacy of the event. The Holocaust has become an archetype of suffering. The integration of the arts and humanities as exemplified by this symposium can function as incisive tools of clarification and self-knowledge. In addition to presentations from world renowned scholars and theologians, activities will include: teachers' workshop, art exhibit, a short play, a film festival, choir/cantorial concert, and a chamber orchestral performance. This symposium is free and open to the public. For information: Carolyn H. Manosevitz, 512/472-2004; fax 512/474-0815; lyrmano@aol.com.

Calls for Manuscripts

Chicago Art Journal, Vol. 10, Spring 2000. Telos, a Greek word referring to an end or final state, and etymologically connoting a "turning point," sets the theme for the 10th-anniversary issue of the Chicago Art Journal. The journal is currently soliciting papers, reviews, and interviews that address issues surrounding completeness, termination, and culmination in the visual arts. Papers (10–25 pages) may engage any number of themes broadly related to ends in their numerous evocations. Topics of interest might include, but are not limited to: apocalypse, perishable and ephemeral objects, historical obsolescence, hell and paradise, funerary art, boundaries of artistic media, iconoclasm, concept of the ruin, decadence, memento mori, apotheosis, fin-de-siècle, geocultural boundaries and colonialism, immanence, and evolution. As art history approaches the end of its first century as an established discipline some commentators raise the question of the discipline's own ends. Here, the journal solicits articles that discuss works from any period or any subject so long as the paper entails reflection on historiographic ends in art history. We are also seeking interviews and reviews of pertinent books, exhibitions, and conferences (5–10 pages). The journal is devoted to presenting graduate student scholarship from all fields and disciplines. Written work should be submitted on paper as well as on disk in MS Word, and must follow The Chicago Manual of Style. Chicago Art Journal, Dept. of Art History, University of Chicago, 5540 S. Greenwood Ave., Chicago, IL 60637. For information: <http://humanities.uchicago.edu/humanities/art/journal.htm>. Deadline: October 1, 1999.

Visual Resources: An International Journal of Documentation, a quarterly journal devoted to the history of visual documentation and the use and dissemination of images, is seeking article-length manuscripts for a special issue on "Illustrations as Visual Resources," projected for Fall 2000. Visual resources are commonly understood as a class of images that reproduce works of art and facilitate the study of those works. As surrogates, visual resources have been much more than simply aide-memoire; they mediate in profound and complex ways our relation to the original. In fact, they have always worked to delimit and determine our perception of originals. This is especially true of illustrations—be they engravings, etchings, lithographs, photographs, or digital images—whose status is equivocal, existing as both surrogates and originals. While the aim of this special issue is to examine illustration within the context of visual resources, we do not wish to limit the discussion to illustrations that reproduce works of art.

Instead, we seek articles that complicate and historicize the notion of "visual resource" and address a range of kinds of illustration. Send inquiries and manuscripts (approx. 9000 words, MSWord format) to: William MacGregor, Dept. of Museum Studies, John F. Kennedy University, 12 Altarinda Rd., Orinda, CA 94563; 925/258-2239; fax 925/253-0420; macgregor@jku.edu. Or, Louis Marchesano, Getty Research Institute for the History of Art and Humanities, 1200 Getty Center Dr., Ste. 1100, Los Angeles, CA 90049-1688; 310/440-7592; fax 310/440-7779; LMarchesano@getty.edu. http://www.gbhap.com/Visual\_Resources/. Deadline: January 15, 2000.

Circline, <http://www.circline.com>, an online antiques resource, is developing editorial content. An educational channel with decorative arts general reference materials (diary of events, stylistic periods of decorative arts, chronologies, cabinetmakers and designers, bibliographies) has recently been added. The site is commissioning a range of scholarly and/or entertaining articles to be published online, with select articles compiled in a printed annual journal. The focus is fine and decorative arts connoisseurship, but contributions on virtually any visual arts topic, and book and exhibition reviews, will be considered. Send submissions to: Jill Trenchard, jilltrenchard@msn.com; 214/823-7047; <http://www.circline.com>.

International Fine Art Journal for Social Change is accepting submissions for October 1999. Submissions include papers dealing with fine arts, the position of the artist in modernity, and the power of artists for positive social change. We are also interested in papers dealing with the socioeconomic and political situations of artists in modernity. Also sought are works of art that promote positive social change. Works should be sent in digital format, including all information about the artist and work of art. Submission must be made by the artist. For information: <http://www.angelfire.com/sc/FineArtJournal/International.html>.

Call for Participants

Culture Shock, A Documentary is a 4-part series airing on PBS in January 2000 that tells the story of classic works of art that have engendered both controversy and acclaim. Each program examines the cultural conditions that lead artists to create and audiences to react. The 4 programs are: "Born to Trouble: Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," "The Devil's Music: 1920s Jazz," "Hollywood Censored: Movies, Morality, and the Hollywood Production Code," "The Shock of the Nude: Manet's Olympia." Outreach and programming around the Culture Shock series in your college art community can engage participants in a series of activities and events. For information about hosting a screening at your college, partnering with your local public television station, outreach materials or to brainstorm local outreach ideas contact: Valerie Grabel; 617/492-2777, ext.3827; valerie_grabel@wgbh.org.

FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT CLARK FELLOWSHIPS

The Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute announces a new Fellowship program designed to extend the understanding of art and its role in culture. We hope the program's physical, social and intellectual environment will encourage new approaches to research and to the communication of ideas. Having run experimentally for over a year, the Fellowship program will expand from next February with the conversion of a nearby house to contain six apartments. The first full scholars' year will be inaugurated in September 2000.

Clark Fellows (one to ten months) and Clark Visiting Fellows (less than one month) will be appointed by a process which includes elements of application, nomination and invitation. Fellows will have the use of an apartment and an office, and will receive a stipend and reimbursement of travel expenses. They may come from any background and be of any nationality. Their interests and approaches may relate to the visual arts of any type from any period and from any place.

Guidelines for applications for the full program will be published in the autumn. Anyone interested in applying for one of the small number of Fellowships still available for the period September 1999 to August 2000 is invited to communicate directly with John Onians, Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, 225 South Street, Williamstown, MA 01267; tel: 1-413-458-9545; E-mail: jonians@clark.williams.edu (after September 1: Michael Ann Holly, at the same address)

Nonresidential Grants at the Getty Center. The Getty Grant Program provides support to scholars at the senior, mid-career, and postdoctoral levels to pursue projects on topics that will advance the understanding of art and its history. Although grantees are welcome to use the Getty library if their projects bring them to L.A., fellowships are nonresidential. Grant recipients pursue their research wherever necessary to complete their projects. Collaborative research grants provide opportunities for teams of scholars to collaborate on interpretive research projects, including the research and planning of scholarly exhibitions. Postdoctoral fellowships provide scholars whose doctoral degrees have been conferred within the last 6 years with 12-month periods of support to pursue interpretive research projects. Curatorial research fellowships provide 1–3 months of support for curators to undertake independent research or study projects. Projects that advance the professional scholarly development of curators are especially encouraged. For information: Getty Grant Program, 1200 Getty Center Dr., Ste. 1100, Los Angeles, CA 90049-1688; 310/440-7392; fax 310/440-7782; residential grants@getty.edu; <http://www.getty.edu/grant/research2000>. Deadline: November 1, 1999 (additional deadlines for Library Research Grants only: January 15, and June 15, 2000).

Residential Grants at the Getty Center. The Getty Research Institute provides support for scholars at the senior, post-, and predoctoral levels to undertake research while in residence at the Getty Center in L.A. Research projects must address the specific theme around which each scholar year is organized; the theme for 2000–2001 is "Reproductions and Originals." The residential grant categories are: Getty Scholars, 9-month fellowships for senior scholars; Postdoctoral Fellows, 2-year fellowships for scholars whose doctoral degrees have been conferred within the last 6 years; Predoctoral Fellows, 2-year fellowships for doctoral candidates who have completed their qualifying examinations; and Visiting Scholars, 1–3-month fellowships for senior scholars pursuing independent research. In addition, the Research Institute also offers Library Research Grants. These awards provide partial short-term support to scholars at all levels to pursue independent projects that will benefit from research in the collections housed in the Getty library. For information: Getty Research Institute, 1200 Getty Center Dr., Ste. 1100, Los Angeles, CA 90049-1688; 310/440-7392; fax 310/440-7782; residentialgrants@getty.edu; <http://www.getty.edu/grant/research2000>. Deadline: November 1, 1999 (additional deadlines for Library Research Grants only: January 15, and June 15, 2000).

Center for Advanced Judaic Studies, University of Pennsylvania postdoctoral fellowships, 2000-2001, "Modern Jewry and the Arts." CAJS will devote its 2000-2001 seminar theme of Jewish involvement in the arts in the modern era. Among the questions it will consider are: What is the connection between Jewish identity and Jewish artistic creativity in modern times? How did the Jewish influx into the arts affect the evolution of modern Jewish culture, and the relations between Jews and non-Jews? How have Jews represented themselves in art, music, architecture, theater, and film? What has been the place of theater and museums in disseminating Jewish culture and art? Scholars of modern Jewish history and culture, as well as those outside the field who combine an interest in Jewish life with expertise in the fields of art, architecture, music, theater, and film are invited to apply. Professional artists and musicians with scholarly interests and with a relevant scholarly project are also encouraged to apply. Graduate students in the final stages of writing their dissertations may also apply. For information: CAJS, 420 Walnut St., Philadelphia, PA 19106; 215/238-1290; fax 215/238-1540; allenshe@sas.upenn.edu. Deadline: November 30, 1999.
