If a Wyeth grant is awarded, publisher agrees to publish the manuscript without substantially departing from the specifications set down above. If substantive changes to the specifications become necessary, publisher should inform the College Art Association director of publications before publication of the book. Significant changes to specifications may in some instances result in cancellation of a grant award, if it is determined that the book no longer meets the standards upon which the award was based. Grant monies are disbursed upon receipt at the College Art Association of final galley proofs or the equivalent, including the acknowledgment statement.

Publisher also agrees to acknowledge the grant by printing the following statement on the copyright page or on the reverse of the title page: "Publication of this book has been aided by a grant from the Wyeth Foundation for American Art Publication Grant of the College Art Association." Below this statement must appear the logotype of the College Art Association. Camera-ready or digital copy will be supplied by the College Art Association.
